HIS SECOND BIRTHDAY Little Li Moy Will Have a Great Time This

'Twill Be an Important Occasion in His Young Life-Chinatown's Elaborate Ceremonies.

Li Moy is going to celebrate his second birthday this week, and all Chinatown will ficck to his parents' house to pay homage to the only Chinese baby in Washington. Li lives down on lower Pennsylvania avenue, and his parents are among the wellto-do celestials of the city. Since his birth, two years ago, Li has been tenderly cared for, and unusual efforts have been made to ward off the innumerable evil spirits which the superstition of his people teach tuem

The second anniversary of Li's advent into this vale of tears is an important event in his life. At that time he is supposed to be directed by fate to choose the profession he will follow for life. It will be the occasion of feasting and prayer and making of gifts to the goddess of chil-dren. Bird's nest soup, preserved eggs and all the delicacles of the Chinese market will be spread in prodigal abundance for the benefit of the almond-eyed guests who call to wish the little fellow success in life and a return to the land of his forefathers after

According to Chinese custom the second anniversary of a child's birth is marked by great rejoicing. At the age of two an infant is supposed to become proof against threatened it since birth, and consequently parents and friends rejoice alike at the reduction of the handicap under which the little one has labored. The remaining devils are easy to deal with when com-pared with the ones left behind and ren-dered harmless by the lapse of time.
